Kapuka 'Ulua Hale Ohana

HAWAIIAN HERITAGE &
ENVIRONMENTAL SUSTAINABILITY FAIR

Saturday April 17th 2009

Paia Gardens, Paia Maui

Noon to sunset

The importance of sustainability is apparent, especially to those of us that live on the island of Maui. Now is the time to start making efforts to change the paradigm of dependence. If we wait until there is no one to take care of us, how will we know how to take care of ourselves.

Hawaiians mastered this ability over hundreds of years. With their use of Ahupua'a and fishponds they were able to make sustainable communities that respected the 'Aina.

The fair is an opportunity to learn and understand about Environmental Sustainability and Hawaiian Heritage. There will be live music, prizes, talk story of the old ways of Maui and what we can do right now to live more sustainably.

Informational booths and workshops will be offered by local organizations to help raise awareness of these issues.

Paia Gardens is located near Paia Bay across from the public parking lot on the Hana Highway behind Thai Island Cuisine.

On April 17th Kapukua'Ulua will have its second Hawaiian Heritage & Environmental sustainability Fair. The first was on December 12th 2009. Many organizations had booths including the Hawaiian Nature Center, GMO Free Maui, Red Worm Composting, the Water Department, Sierra Club and many others. Speakers included former Mayor Alan Arakawa, Kuhea Parcelles Environmental Coordinator for the Mayors office, Lucienne DeNaie an environmental activist, Auntie Mele a Maui elder, Vincent Mina a sustainable farmer and Home Le'mohala a Maui Kanaka Maole. Auntie Pua preformed a Hawaiian blessing to start the fair.

Do you or your organization want to support the second quarterly Hawaiian Heritage & Environmental Sustainability Fair?

Kapuka'Ulua Hale Ohana needs support to continue having free fairs for the public. The biggest cost is for the venue, other cost include advertisements, entertainment, prizes, a sound system, popcorn, drinks, rental of portable toilets, table and, chairs.
